About the Project

The proposed natural gas pipeline, up to 48 in in diameter and approximately 305 kilometres (km) in length, starts from a southern point about 35 km southwest of Fort St. John to a northern point about 200 km northwest of Fort St. John where it will tie into a new meter station. The proposed project will safely deliver natural gas to the existing NGTL System and will create opportunities for local and Aboriginal businesses and annual property tax revenues.
